CONFESSIONS OF A LOW TECHNOLOGY MAN II

"The five computer blunders I never made, thanks to the Epson Personal Computer."

"In my business, I'm an unqualified success, but when it comes to sophisticated electronic equipment, I'm the original low technology man.

So, I started talking to people who had actually bought computers.

When I finished, I still didn't know what kind of computer I wanted – but I sure knew what kind I wanted to avoid:

1. Computers that take forever to learn.
2. Computers that are too difficult to use.
3. Computers that can't handle my specific business needs.
4. Computers that can't handle a wide breadth of business applications.
5. Computers I couldn't use forever.

List in hand, I started shopping. And out of all the computers I saw, only one made me confident I could avoid every blunder I had yet to make. The Epson® QX-10.

Only the Epson

Look at the Epson keyboard.

Epson keys are marked with words like STORE, RETRIEVE, MAIL and DRAW. Each key does exactly what you would think it would do. No "computerese" to learn. No artificial routines to memorize.

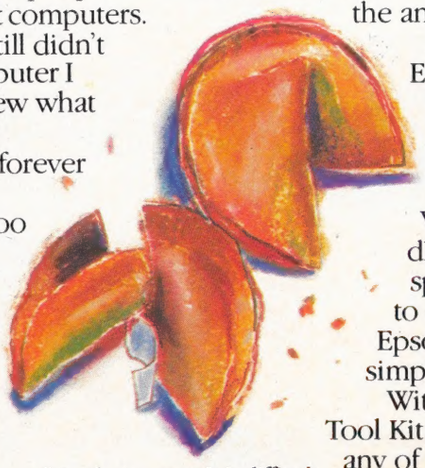
Only the Epson has this keyboard. And only the Epson comes with Valdocs,™ a powerful, integrated software system for the five most important business functions.

"Of all the personal computers in the world, only the Epson has this keyboard."

Thanks to the keyboard and Valdocs, all it took was ten minutes to forget potential blunders #1 and #2.

For most people, Valdocs will be all they'll ever want.

But if your specific business needs demand more, Epson has the answer.



"Confucius says: It is difficult to buy a computer today when you don't know what's coming tomorrow."

The new Epson Executive Tool Kit – a collection of best selling programs, including WordStar,® and dBase II,® now specially enhanced to operate with Epson one-button simplicity.

With the Executive Tool Kit, I could handle any of today's current business needs.

Arrivederci, potential blunder #3.

But what about future needs?

I'm not going to become obsolete. How about my computer?

An Epson is forever

Because the Epson comes with CP/M® capability, included free, you have access to literally hundreds of programs. Or, you can purchase MS™-DOS compatibility and use programs that run on the IBM® Personal Computer, including Lotus® 1-2-3.®

All of which means the Epson will run almost any type of application program ever written or yet to be written.

Scratch #4 and #5.

If that doesn't leave you brimming with confidence, make up your own list of blunders and take it to your nearby Epson dealer.

That's the best way I know to avoid the biggest blunder of them all.

Not buying the Epson."

QX-10 Includes: 256K RAM; Two Double Density Disk Drives; High Resolution Monitor (and 128K dedicated video memory); RS-232C and parallel ports; five expansion slots; required interface cables, exclusive VALDOCS integrated software; Microsoft BASIC; and enhanced CP/M-80 2.2 operating system (MS-DOS available as an option).

ONE YEAR FREE WARRANTY provided coast-to-coast under contract with E.S.S.N.A. Services Ltd. For a free brochure call the Epson Regional Office: Eastern Region (514) 331-7534 Central Region (416) 439-4396 Western Region (403) 255-2772

FIRST CHOICE SUPER CHANNEL™

CABLE CONNECTION

Guest Editorial from First Choice★ Superchannel

Happy Birthday To Us

It's been exactly two years since the launch, on February 1, 1983, of premium television in Canada: twenty-four short months to introduce Canadians coast-to-coast to the very best value in home entertainment. By the same token, for the industry, it's been twenty-four months of receiving, discussing, evaluating and implementing a multitude of your suggestions and comments. It's proved to be a worthwhile exercise — and one that will continue — because it's helped put First Choice★ Superchannel into more than 300,000 homes in eastern Canada.

With that kind of spectacular growth, you can be assured that your input has had its effect, and that it will continue to do so. Last November, we had a survey page inserted in your issue of PrimeTime. There were more than 20 questions (some were quite involved) requesting all sorts of information, from simple demographic facts such as the number of people in your family to details on the types of movies you prefer. Thousands of you returned the survey, fully completed. Many of you even took the time and effort to attach letters that explained, at great length, the reasons behind the choices you had made and the decisions you had indicated on the survey form. At presstime (December) for this February PrimeTime issue, we are still involved in processing the great wealth of information you have provided. There's one thing you can be sure of: it will have its impact, as it has in the past, and First Choice★ Superchannel subscribers are going to benefit.

Since September 1, the best of both First Choice★ Superchannel, for one single price, has found enormous acceptance with Canadians. Value is the obvious watchword for Canadian consumers in the eighties: real value for their entertainment dollars. First Choice★ Superchannel took the value in home entertainment, and doubled it.

The strongest titles from both services — the titles that you, the subscriber, had figuratively applauded longest and loudest, via your letters and phone calls — are now available on First Choice★ Superchannel. Harnessing the joint efforts of both, while keeping the price the same $15.95, has resulted in improved programming, and happier subscribers.

September 1 saw another new development in the history of the industry, and one of the most vitally important opportunities yet presented. For First Choice★ Superchannel, as for two of the new specialty services, MuchMusic and The Sports Network in particular, as well as the cable community, it had everything to do with our ultimate goal: subscriber satisfaction. Reaching for that goal meant once again taking another hard look at our subscribers' definition of "value". With MuchMusic and The Sports Network, the Satisfaction Three Pack was developed as the answer. Movies, music, sports: value and variety, all for $15.95. It has proved to be a better answer than most. As of this writing, fully 86% of all new sales of discretionary services in eastern Canada has been for the Satisfaction Three Pack. In thirteen weeks, from September 1 through November 30, this package of three services — your cable company might have christened it with a new name — has helped generate 25% additional subscriber households to First Choice★ Superchannel.

With all that we can now offer you as a subscriber to First Choice★ Superchannel, we sincerely hope that a number of key objectives have been attained. That is not to say that we won't keep trying to improve on all of it. We're here because of what you want to see in a discretionary movie service. We encourage you to submit whatever comments you may have because it truly helps our evaluation process. In your own evaluation process, as you tune in month to month, check the full listings for First Choice★ Superchannel in each new issue of PrimeTime. Evaluate each month's programming as a whole, and plan your viewing schedule with this in mind. The value to you, as a subscriber to First Choice★ Superchannel, is the convenience of top movie titles, uncut, commercial-free and 24 hours a day, in your own home for pennies a day. Enjoy First Choice★ Superchannel, plan your viewing, and don't worry about the money you would have spent on babysitters, popcorn and parking if you'd gone to the movies.

Don't forget that our strongest material is often available on weekends — Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights — but there is no need to indulge in that great Canadian pastime of lining up for the box office, when a flick of the switch will do instead. You're going to find a lot of great reasons on First Choice★ Superchannel for staying home this winter. We now have signed agreements with all major Hollywood studios. First Choice★ Superchannel will continue, through 1985, with blockbuster properties like Sudden Impact, Raiders of the Lost Ark, The Right Stuff, Terms of Endearment, all scheduled to meet the convenience needs of our subscribers. Our programming philosophy, and the one which seems to satisfy the majority of subscribers, is based on playing a top premiere movie approximately 5 times in its first month, 2 to 3 times in its second month, and then, most often, holding it back until its seventh month and again until its last month. Studios release the rights to their most successful movies to all pay television services, here and in the United States, on a monthly basis and at approximately the same time. Interesting enough, First Choice★ Superchannel runs an average of 88 titles monthly; HBO and Showtime, for example, run an average of only 43 titles monthly, and their repeat factor averages 25% higher per title than First Choice★ Superchannel.

First Choice★ Superchannel is your answer to great movie entertainment value; packaged services are your answer to value and variety. Your cable company and their customer service representatives can provide you with all the information you might require in determining which package will best suit your needs and your lifestyle. As partners in the effort to bring Canadians some of the best entertainment around, the cable community is a vital part of the education and evaluation process as well. Keep them informed, and keep First Choice★ Superchannel informed on how you feel, because together, we have a lot more of you to keep happy.

WOMAN as SUPERSTAR

Ask five people to name their favourite movie stars, and you'll probably get at least three Clint Eastwoods, two Paul Newmans, a couple of Redfords, and perhaps a Duvall or a De Niro to round out the bunch. It's one of those nasty facts of life that make a feminist's blood boil, but chances are, nary a female star will be mentioned.

But perhaps it's not all the movie-goer's fault. Maybe, just maybe, there aren't that many movies that provide that magical star vehicle for the Langes, the Streeps and the Streisands of the movie world.

For years we've been watching heavyweight actors dominate the screen. The women in the movies were often there to 1) add to the scenery, 2) provide the love-interest, or, 3) momentarily distract the hero from his true vocation of beating up the bad guys. Except for a very few renegades like Katherine Hepburn, Joan Crawford and Bette Davis, women's roles didn't often venture beyond supporting pats. In fact, some years the best actress category at the Academy Awards should have been re-phrased "the actress who best supports her male lead". In short, there were very few films where women carried the picture — where audiences went to a movie solely on the basis of a female "name" star. The reason for that was that the studio moguls had decided that actresses didn't have financial clout at the box office — and that, after all, was and is the bottom line.

But among all the lamenting by actresses for good roles, something happened in the late seventies. Pictures like Julia, The Turning Point, The Goodbye Girl and Annie Hall opened to good reviews and full houses. The feminist movement seemed to be the catalyst for this kind of "women's picture". As women struggled with changing identities and new roles, Anne Bancroft and Shirley MacLaine tusseled with the career vs. motherhood dilemma while Marsha Mason worked at finding self-confidence in her career and her love life. The trend peaked in An Unmarried Woman — the picture that brought popular recognition to Jill Clayburgh. Here was Erica, dumped by her husband for a sweet young thing, yet she manages to put her life back together. She gets a great apartment, a great job, and a great man in the form of the luscious Alan Bates. But because she still has to "find herself", she decides to keep the first two, and in a fit of what any eighties' female would surely call outright insanity, she passes on Mr. Bates.

The good roles for women didn't last though. Jessica Lange discussed the problem in retrospect. "You know, the heyday of the woman's film was short-lived. It lasted only two or three years, during the height of the woman's movement. Everybody thought that the trend would become lasting, but it didn't sustain itself."

Five years later Jessica Lange, Meryl Streep, Barbra Streisand, and a host of other actresses have again come into their cinematic own. This time around, the roles are not so much about the angst of being a modern woman; instead, the characters and the actresses who play them all seem to possess an underlying strength and determination of purpose that applies to everything they do. The individual rather than the stereotype — suddenly films revolve around personal struggle.

This new trend can be seen in pictures like Frances and Sophie's Choice. Frances stars Jessica Lange in her most challenging role yet. It tells the tragic story of actress Frances Farmer who refuses to become a part of the 1940's studio system. Disappointed in the father she loves, and committed to her troubled mother, Frances relies deeply on her friendship with Harry York, a free-thinking left-wing political candidate. A successful screen test lands her in Hollywood, where studio convention immediately conflicts with her individuality. An unsuccessful marriage, and a heartbreaking love affair, coupled with bouts of drinking and imprisonment for a minor traffic offence lead Frances to the brink. She is eventually placed in a mental institution where she endures long months of shock treatment, hydrotherapy and a horrifying lobotomy.

Frances, and Sophie's Choice

A Great One For Actresses, But Will It Continue?

provided Lange and Streep with two enormously complex roles. Both heroines are strong, individualistic women, but both are doomed to become victims.

In Silkwood, Streep's next film following Sophie's Choice, Streep plays another victim who is enmeshed in circumstances that careen out of her control. Exposed to deadly radiation in the nuclear plant where she works, and shocked by the casual attitude of her co-workers and superiors, Karen Silkwood begins to probe an industry whose safety record is far less than perfect. The tragic result seems inevitable. Meryl Streep is superb as the bouncy, free-spirited Silkwood, supported by an excellent cast including Cher and Kurt Russell.

Women are not only starring in interesting, exciting pictures though — they are also making them. Barbra Streisand became the first woman in history to produce, direct, co-write and star in a major feature. Yentl is a romantic drama set to music about a courageous young woman who ventures into a world open only to men. Feeling smothered in her womanly role, Yentl disguises herself as a man and enters the world of study that had previously been denied to her. Everything goes well until she befriends and falls in love with fellow student, Avigdor (Mandy Patinkin). However, he is in love with the beautiful Hadass (Amy Irving), but Hadass is in love with Yentl. This comic love triangle eventually ends happily with Yentl discovering that "nothing is impossible".

Like Yentl, Barbra Streisand also encountered difficulties in the male dominated world of the movies, especially when it came to transferring the original story to the screen.

"I was attempting to do what is considered a man's job", Streisand says. "I was fighting for the opportunity to be respected in a man's world and yet at the same time, trying to maintain my femininity. Perhaps being an actress, I was not viewed as being responsible for money. For many years, no one was willing to take the gamble. They would say, 'Streisand should sing and act, but nothing more,' or 'Streisand should act and produce but never direct.' What they didn't realize is that in order to grow, personally and professionally, I had to stretch. Like Yentl, I was ready for more."

Following in Streisand's footsteps, other women are also moving into roles as producers and directors of commercially successful films. Martha Coolidge, whose previous credits included making serious documentaries, undertook the direction of Valley Girl — an irreverent comedy of that eighties' phenomenon that originated in the well-to-do suburbs of California's San Fernando Valley. Julie is a typical ultra-conservative Valley Girl, who wears the right clothes, talks the right lingo and dates the right boys. Randy comes from Hollywood Hills, dresses punk, and definitely does not fit in with Julie's crowd. Under Coolidge's direction the picture becomes a comic testament to the problems of today's teens. Discussing the transition from making documentaries about women to mainstream movies, Coolidge finds that, "Now, instead of being offered 'women's material', I'm being offered comedies."

Terms of Endearment is also a comedy, but with dramatic overtones that beautifully explore the complex workings of a mother-daughter relationship. Shirley MacLaine and Debra Winger star as Aurora and Emma Greenway who are able to love and despise each other all at the same time. Aurora Greenway believes that she must maintain an ordered life with complete control of herself and everyone around her, including, of course, her daughter. Emma, in trying very hard not to be her mother's daughter, marries Flap Horton, a rather directionless professor, and their lives become the bane of both Emma's and Aurora's existence.

Terms of Endearment is a special film because of the tremendous warmth and emotion that MacLaine and Winger bring to their roles. Although appealing especially to women (there is a little of Aurora and Emma in every mother and daughter), Terms transcends the mold of a "woman's picture", and speaks to everyone who has ever experienced love.

Other recently released movies, while portraying a woman's point of view are also moving beyond the sole classification of being a woman's picture. Sally Field stars in Places in the Heart, a warm, rural story that shows Field in her best role since Norma Rae.

The River features Sissy Spacek and Mel Gibson as a couple trying to save their home from the flood waters of a nearby river.

And Jessica Lange produces and stars in Country, with Sam Shepard. She plays a farm wife fighting the government's thirty-day foreclosure notice on the family farm. Although this is her most subtle and understated role yet, Lange is moving into the category of superstar talent, not only as a fine actress and shrewd producer, but she is also becoming "a bankable star" — in the eyes of the film world and the audience, she is a name to be reckoned with.

But will she continue to get good roles in good pictures? And what about Meryl Streep, Shirley MacLaine, Barbra Streisand, and the several other excellent actresses who possess real box-office potential? It's hard to predict if the current trend will continue, or if this is merely a repeat of the 1977-78 season. However, with actresses like Lange and Streisand moving into the power positions of producing, and with more and more women turning to directing, maybe we'll see a consistent offering of good women's roles. And soon, when you ask someone to name their five favourite stars, along with Newman and Eastwood, they'll also include Jessica Lange, Sally Field, Barbra Streisand, "... and that new, young actress who just made that terrific film..."

PREMIERING

In February World Television Premiere

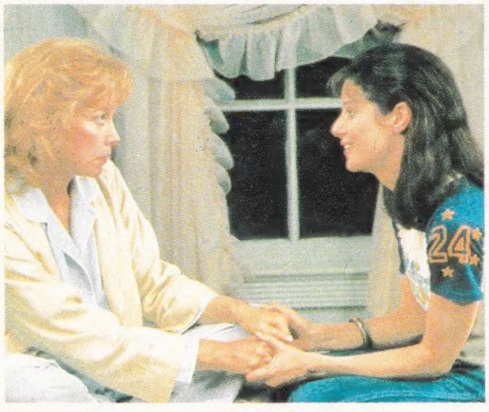
Terms of Endearment XXX



After winning the hearts of its audience and critical acclaim, Terms of Endearment went on to sweep the 1984 Academy Awards presentation, winning Oscars for Best Actress (Shirley MacLaine) Best Supporting Actor (Jack Nicholson), Director (James Brooks of Taxi and The Mary Tyler Moore Show) and Best Picture. Spanning 30 years, the film examines the relationship of mother and daughter in humourous yet moving terms. Shirley MacLaine is Aurora Greenway, a woman who is only secure when she is in total control of the people around her. Debra Winger is her strong-willed daughter, Emma. Their love for each other is not enough to reconcile their differences. Though the movie revolves around their struggle, it also examines their individual relationships.

Jack Nicholson is Aurora's next-door neighbor, former U.S. astronaut Garrett Breedlove. He is a boisterous, hard-drinking chaser of nymphets, determined to shake Aurora free from her rigid lifestyle. Emma is married to Flap Horton (Jeff Daniels) a likeable but limited man whom Aurora cannot tolerate. His philandering provokes Emma into a brief affair with a shy banker, John Lithgow. The film circles back to Emma and Aurora, forced at last to express their love as the spectre of Emma's cancer hangs over them. Hollywood Reporter spoke lovingly of this movie, finding "a probing, sensitive, intelligent script with glowing performances by an extraordinary, hand-picked cast that mingles tenderness with insight." Language, mature content. (PG, 131m)

When Caine and best friend and partner Joseph Bologna (My Favorite Year) holiday in South America, they find themselves without their wives. Abandoned by his wife and caught up in the music and magic of Rio, it isn't too long before Caine capitulates. YENTL

World Television Premiere

For producer, director, writer and star Barbra Streisand, this tour de force was the fulfillment of a 15 year struggle. Though repeatedly blocked in her efforts to bring Isaac Singer's story to the screen, Streisand persevered and her audience benefited. Yentl tells the story of a young Jewish woman living in Eastern Europe at the turn of the century. Though the Jewish culture forbids her studying the holy scriptures, her scholarly rabbi father encourages her to pursue her passion for learning. After his death, she disguises herself as a boy to study in a Yeshiva school. While she has no problems with her studies, tragic/comic results stem from the romantic triangle she finds herself in. Befriended by an attractive fellow student, Avigdor (Mandy Patinkin of Daniel) Yentl falls in love with him but is helpless to express it. Avigdor is in love with the beautiful Hadass (Amy Irving) but is prevented from marrying her due to religious law. Instead he pushes Yentl into marriage with Hadass. The lovely lyrics of Yentl's songs, all sung by Streisand, become a projection of the feelings she can't disclose in her disguise. Said People magazine, "Barbra Streisand's Yentl is the kind of movie they aren't supposed to be making anymore — sweet, simple and emotionally satisfying." Mature themes. (PG, 134m)

THE LONELY GUY

A thoughtful and offbeat comedy starring Steve Martin as the lovelorn Larry, a greeting card writer whose girlfriend throws him over for a ballet dancer. Cast into the mainstream of swinging singleness, Larry meets up with Warren (Charles Grodin) who introduces him to life as a Lonely Guy in New York City; the empty little black book, parties peopled by cardboard cut-outs, barroom pick-up techniques. With the experience he gains, writing the "Lonely Guy's Handbook" is a natural for Larry and he receives instant fame and fortune. Only love evades him as Larry pursues relationship-wary Iris (Judith Ivey), the woman who has been married to six Lonely Guys and who spurns him because he is so right for her. Martin revives his most endearing character, the lovable nerd and as usual provides some inspired moments of comedy. Language. (A, 90m)

HOT DOG THE MOVIE

Hot dogging, for skiers in the know, is the flashy style of snow skiing which combines ballet, gymnastics and sheer guts. In this fun and youthful film, an innocent, up and coming skier (Patrick Houser of Endangered Species) is competing in the World Free-Style Skiing Championships. His major rival is an arrogant Austrian champ (John Patrick Reger). Both on the slopes and in the lounges, the two compete at everything. David Naughton (An American Werewolf in London) is an on-the-skids skier trying to recapture his youth. Also featured is ex-Playboy model Shannon Tweed (Of Unknown Origin). As directed by Peter Markle (The Personals), the scenery is gorgeous, the stunts are breathtaking and the ski sequences are stunning. Nudity, language. (R, 98m)

D.C. CAB

With one of the world's strongest and most flamboyant men as a driver for a second-rate cab company in Washington, D.C., you can be certain there are loads of laughs in this funky comedy. Mr. T, Gary Busey (The Bear), Rastaman DeWayne Jessie, aspiring pimp Paul Rodriguez and jive-talkin' Charlie Barnett make up the ragtag band of drivers trying to keep their dilapidated cars on the road. Joined by fresh-faced innocent Adam Baldwin, the mismatched group rises to the occasion when their company is threatened with its extinction. Proving right is better than might (though it helps if Mr. T is on your side), the film prompted Variety to call D.C. Cab "a comedy natural ... carried by its energetic spirit." Nudity, language. (A, 99m)

His extreme tactics both repel and attract the liberal-minded Martin Sheen (That Championship Season), a successful television director who despises Gossett for his violence yet cannot fight his own growing dependence on the security guard's power. A riveting film about big-city paranoia, critic Jack Curry of USA Today called The Guardian "intelligent and subtle ... a totally contemporary and urbane dramatization of the primitive turf psychology." Violence, language and nudity. (A, 101m)

OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

The encyclopedia lists no genealogical origin for rats, an interesting piece of trivia which provides the title for this psychological horror film. As might be expected, a particularly large and loathsome rodent is in the center of the action. The protagonist is an ambitious young banking executive, played by Peter Weller (Buckaroo Banzai). With his wife (Shannon Tweed of Hot Dog ... The Movie) and son visiting grandparents, Weller is left in their Manhattan townhouse to complete an important project for his company. Alone and under pressure, exterminating the noisy and distracting rat becomes an obsession for Weller. The shocking and frequently suspenseful drama culminates in an eerie battle between man and rodent. Violence, language. (R, 87m)

LENNY

Lenny Bruce was an architect of social upheaval in North America and changed the form of stand-up comedy forever. His biting humour and scatalogical routines made him one of the most controversial figures of the '50s. Bob Fosse's biography of this unique and gifted individual stars Dustin Hoffman in one of his most powerful performances. The film is shot in flashback sequences as the three major forces in Bruce's life; his wife, his mother and his agent, are tape-interviewed after his death. Valerie Perrine is Honey Bruce, the stripper Lenny married and then turned onto drugs and kinky sex. Critic Leonard Maltin gave Lenny four stars, calling it "a powerful biography with fine direction, evocative camera work and showcase excellent performances." Nudity, language. (R, b&w, 112m)

Brooke Adams (The Dead Zone) is the tough police officer who first arrests, then falls in love with Hunt. CRACKERS

French director Louis Malle (Atlantic City, My Dinner With Andre) assembled a strong cast of character actors to bring this street comedy to life, a remake of the Italian hit Big Deal On Madonna Street. Set in the Mission District of San Francisco, a group of unemployed layabouts decide to break into the local pawnshop and rob the safe. Donald Sutherland is the organizing spirit behind the caper; the pawnshop is owned by his buddy Jack Warden. Recruiting Larry Riley, a flashy pimp whose last woman left him with her baby; Sean Penn (Bad Boys), a Southern musician; illegal alien Trinidad Silva (Hill Street Blues); Wallace Shawn (My Dinner With Andre), aptly nicknamed Turtle; metermaid Christine Baranski and aspiring prostitute Charlaine Woodard, Sutherland puts this disparate group under the tutelage of nutty safe-cracking expert Irwin Corey. Said Variety, "the wide assortment of characters provide moment-to-moment amusement." Language. (PG, 92m)

CUJO

David Cronenberg's The Dead Zone was not the only successful adaptation of a Stephen King novel last year; director Levis Teague's (Alligator) first big budget feature was another King bestseller that made an impressive transformation to the screen in 1983. Dee Wallace (E.T., The Howling) stars in this chilling look at imagined irrational and hidden fears that mesh into horrifying reality for Donna Trenton and her six-year-old son Tad. Trapped in a stalled car on an abandoned plot of farmland, a once friendly, now rabid St. Bernard becomes a deadly waiting assassin, stalking his terrified prey like an unconquerable force. Teague's claustrophobic camera work never stops moving, exploring the interior of the sun-drenched vehicle with the uncomprehending and diseased face of man's best friend menacing from outside. Violence, language. (A, 91m)

KIDCO

As the thrifty eleven-year-old capitalist, Dickie (Scott Schwartz) asks for only one thing in his childishly-lisped bedtime prayer — commercial success. Using his innate business flair and organizing his sisters and friends, Dickie starts a manure-peddling business which succeeds beyond his wildest dreams. However, as Dickie happily tots up his cash flow on his personal computer, adult competitors cry "unfair" and sue him. With the cause of Children Power put to the test, Kidco has its day in court and proves you can fight injustice. Mild language. (PG, 104m)

DISTANCE

A military base in Georgia in the mid 1950's is the setting for this gold medal-winning film detailing the problems of two army couples. A black sergeant has brought back his white German wife to America. Though she loves him wholeheartedly, it is not enough against his inability to share himself and his personal problems. A young private, played by James Woods (Against All Odds) and friend to the sergeant becomes involved with an older woman who proves to the young man he is not as unattached from life as he sees himself. The unhappy German wife turns to the private and is callously brushed off. When she kills herself, the guilt forms an additional bond between the two men. Critic Richard Eder of the New York Times praised the film saying "It believes in itself, in its story, in its characters, and that belief pulls viewers into it. The film's real jewels are its freshness, its lovely characterizations, and its splendid acting." Nudity, language. (A, 94m)

SUPERMAN III

Patrolling the skies for truth, justice and the American way has launched Christopher Reeve from virtual obscurity to instant world-wide recognition as the best-known superhero in movies. According to Variety, the entertainment watchdog, the Man of Steel trilogy has generated nearly $200 million in North American rentals alone and shows no signs of running out of flying power. The third entry to the popular saga pits Superman against the funniest criminal mastermind yet, fiendish computer whiz Richard Pryor. Blackmailed into destroying Superman with computerized kryptonite, Pryor's imperfect machine-made metal splits Superman's personality and releases his evil impulses. Can the world survive an ill-tempered Superman? Will Richard Pryor make the Man of Steel laugh? Is childhood sweetheart Lana Lang (Annette O'Toole) woman enough to replace Lois Lane? A gentle, humourous film presenting the belief that war is insanity. Alan Bates, an innocent Scots soldier, walks into a French town in WWI to disarm explosives left by the Germans. The people of the village have fled, leaving behind only the inmates of the local asylum. These harmless dreamers have taken over the town and dress up as 19th century characters. Hailing Bates as their king, they welcome him into their fantastical world and share their vision with him. Bates now must find the explosives to protect his subjects, as well as shield them from the British and German troops waiting on each side. Genevieve Bujold is the lovely inmate Bates falls in love with. Said Variety "the offbeat comedies and treatment make this a contender." Mature themes. (PG, 102m)

THE PERSONALS

S W M R D ... shorthand from the 'personals' ads for Single White Male Recently Divorced. Bill (Bill Schoppert) is just a nice guy whose wife has left him. His friend Paul goes to great lengths to cheer him up, but Bill would rather roller-skate. An ad in the personals column leads to a rather bizarre relationship with a beautiful lady psychiatrist (Karen Landry) that is even more confused and unsettling than his marriage. This little known film, shot in Minneapolis with unknown actors, received critical acclaim and a very strong following even though it was released primarily in art-film houses and film festivals. Charles Champlin, writing in the LA Times called it '... a sharply contemporary romantic comedy with attractive people and a hopeful point of view.'

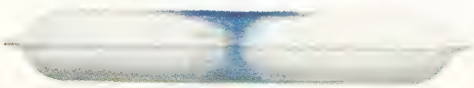
EASTERN EDITION

"Totally secure. Totally Feminine. That's how I feel with MAXITHINS."

Maxi-pad protection without the bulk.



ORDINARY MAXI-PAD

MAXITHINS

MAXITHINS™ pads are made with a special thin layer of super-absorbent material. It works by drawing fluid to the centre and holding it there. Which means MAXITHINS provide the same protection and security as maxi-pads while eliminating most of the bulk.

Discreet to wear.

Since MAXITHINS are thinner, they're more comfortable to wear. And this more feminine size makes them less obvious, with far less bulk to show through your clothing.

Discreet to carry

Each MAXITHINS pad is folded, then individually wrapped in its own packet. So they're as discreet and feminine to carry as they are to wear.

No wonder MAXITHINS were overwhelmingly preferred when tested against a leading maxi-pad.

MAXITHINS... from TAMPAX.

™MAXITHINS is a trademark of Canadian TAMPAX Corporation Ltd.

Cable INSIDER

Pay-Television News Update

The recent national Cable Television Association Awards ceremony in California showcased the best in cable programming, much of which is available to be enjoyed on your pay-television networks. Hosted by Ed Asner and Lee Remick, the evening was a gala black tie affair, created to promote an awareness of the high quality programming currently offered, culminating in the presentations of the ACE (Awards for Cable Excellence) awards.

The Arts & Entertainment Network received three ACE awards from their seven nominations. Lee Remick was recognized for her superb performance in the musical comedy I Do, I Do with the Best Actress award in a comedy or music program. Remick was called upon to sing, dance and age 50 years in this humourous play on the ups and downs of a 50 year marriage. Arts & Entertainment's Sunday night series Stage which presents the best of Broadway and regional theatre, received an ACE for excellence in dramatic series programming. Directors Frank Corsaro and Perry Rosemond were presented the ACE for achievement in direction of dramatic or theatrical program for their work on the Stage feature Cold Storage, a moving play of two strangers with only one common bond — they're both dying of cancer.

The pungent humour of Not Necessarily The News was recognized for Best Comedy Series. This always topical spoof on the evening news is presented on First Choice★ Superchannel.

The Canadian production of Best Friends (aka Nobody Makes Me Cry) seen on First Choice★ Superchannel brought together two mega stars — Carol Burnett and Elizabeth Taylor in a feature film commemorating a friendship which lasts through their individual troubles and triumphs. Though it must have been difficult to judge between the two outstanding talents, Carol Burnett received the ACE for Best Actress.

David Bowie's Serious Moonlight Tour provided the opportunity to celebrate the unlimited talents of this charismatic performer. Performing a fantastic array of his past hits and highlighting his latest album "Let's Dance', Bowie's concert broke ticket sales records as he packed stadiums around the world. The NCTA recognized the special, innovative abilities of Bowie with an ACE for Best Special Music Show. Bowie's Vancouver concert was taped live and shown on First Choice★ Suchannel earlier this year.

The First Choice★ Superchannel series Livewire received an ACE for Best Educational Series. Hosted by Fred Newman, the series presents a topic such as family relations, sex, education or suicide, for discussion with a panel of experts, encouraging participation from the audience. Though supposedly for 12 to 16 year olds, the show is one which could be enjoyed and learnt from by the whole family.

Hollywood News Update

Black comedian Garrett Morris, last seen on Saturday Night Live, will show up in a macabre comedy entitled The Census Taker. Morris will star as the mean-spirited government official who delights in spreading malicious gossip throughout the neighborhood. Co-starring is Roxanne Rolle.

The very versatile Tome Hulce, last seen as Mozart in Amadeus and probably even better known for his nerdish appearance in National Lampoon's Animal House, has become a pizza delivery man. But it's all captured on film for the movie Echo Park, a comedy about 3 people determined to make it in show business.

Trekkies rejoice! William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy will be back on the bridge for Star Trek IV. Shatner is reputedly receiving $2 million for his reprisal of Admiral Kirk.

Richard Pryor will next be seen with John Candy in a remake of Brewster's Millions. Directed by Walter Hill (48 Hrs.) Pryor is required to spend $30 million in 30 days to qualify for his inheritance.

In Mask, Cher plays a motorcycle-club groupie and the mother of a boy named Rocky, who has craniodiaphyseal dysplasia, a disease that causes the head to swell to three times its normal size. Eric Stoltz (The Wild Life) is Rocky, and the real life story is directed by Peter Bogdanovich.

Nastassja Kinski will be returning to work after a hiatus to have a child and get married, in director Arthur Joffe's film Harem. Ben Kingsley will co-star.

Sir Richard Attenborough's next project, bringing Broadway's longest running show, A Chorus Line, to film, is finally taking shape. After auditioning more than 3,000 performers, Michael Douglas was chosen to play Zach, the exacting director, with Audrey Landers (Dallas), Alyson Reed and Bob Fosse's daughter, Nicole as principal dancers. Most of the actors in this film will be unknown though, opening up the opportunity for new faces to achieve that nebulous state of stardom.
